Their short stories have been gathered together into our Best Brightest 2012 anthology which one of these stellar candidates will win the cash prize and be awarded the title of this year’s Best Brightest provides an overview of the big issues in the business world today with firsthand accounts from young leaders tasked with tackling these issues head on. A groundbreaking book that offers approaches for changing the hidden biases in the workplace this is an eye-opening examination of the causes and dynamics of bias in the workplace offering a psychological, political, and societal analysis of the actual cost of bias to the bottom line. The authors make the hurdles that women and minorities face in the workplace as personal to the reader as they are to those who face them. Giving notice is filled with sensible approaches for solving the current imbalance and challenges us to rethink unconscious ideas about stereotypes and commonly accepted business practices. Henry Kissinger, Jack Welch, Condoleezza Rice, and Jon Bon Jovi have in common: they have all reached the top of their respective professions and they all credit sports for teaching them the lessons that were fundamental to their success. In his years spent interviewing and profiling celebrities, politicians, and top businesspeople, popular sportscaster and Fox Friends cohost Brian Kilmeade has discovered that nearly everyone shares a love of sports and has a story about how a game, a coach, or a single moment of competition changed his or her life. These vignettes have entertained, surprised, and inspired readers nationwide with their insight into America's most respected and well-known personalities. Kilmeade presents more than seventy stories straight from the men and women themselves and those who were closest to them from competition to camaraderie. Individual achievement to teamwork, failure to success, the world of sports encompasses it all and enriches our lives. The Games Do Count reveals this simple and compelling truth: America's best and brightest haven't just worked hard; they've played hard, and the results have been staggering.

Veteran comet hunter and eloquent popular astronomy writer David H. Levy takes amateur sky watchers on a fascinating journey into deep space in this enthusiastic and informative survey of the many distant yet observable objects in the night sky light years beyond our solar system. Deep sky objects include such intriguing phenomena as double and triple stars, nebulae, galaxies, and quasars. Designed to be accessible for even beginners, Levy's clear, elegant descriptions will guide astronomy buffs in any hemisphere and locale. Light polluted cities as well as dark countryside to the wonders of our enormous universe. As the discoverer or codiscoverer of twenty-one comets, including the famous Shoemaker-Levy 9 that crashed into Jupiter in 1994, Levy has devoted many decades of experience to observing the night sky over the years. He has located over 300 deep sky objects, of which more than 100 best and brightest are featured in this book. Levy offers a physical description and a discussion. of each object's history and beauty as well as a star atlas to aid in finding the objects proceeding from objects closest to our solar system to those farthest away. Levy gives readers an awe-inspiring glimpse into the structure of the cosmos, complete with both color and black and white photos plus many helpful illustrations. Deep sky objects is the ideal guide to the wonders of the universe for both experienced and novice star gazers. For centuries, the United States has been a magnet for human capital; ambitious, talented immigrants came to make their fortunes and stayed to pump wealth into the U.S. economy. Today, America relies more than ever on immigrant brainpower; over half the PhDs working here are foreign born, and nearly half the physicists, computer scientists, and mathematicians and many of Silicon Valley's high-tech leaders. But David Heenan warns they may not be here long. In 'Flight Capital,' Heenan describes how within the past decade America has gone from being the top importer of brainpower to a net exporter. Empowered by the globalization of technology, emerging economies from Iceland to India are using aggressive initiatives to attract top knowledge workers in a reverse brain drain. Hundreds of thousands of the best and brightest in America are returning to their native lands to pursue new opportunities. Heenan recounts the stories of dozens of emigrating professionals in an engaging way to explore the various factors—personal, cultural, economic, and political—that are fueling the exodus. Human capital and its consequences for America at a time when a shortage of talented labor is exacerbated by post-9/11 immigration restrictions. The outflow of brainpower threatens U.S. technological and economic preeminence and even our security. Unless quick action is taken, Heenan argues, a dozen hard-hitting measures to correct the situation both short and long term are timely and compelling. 'Flight Capital' focuses attention on whether America will continue as a world leader and on the new forces at play in the global economic community. Finding the best and brightest proposes an approach to choosing leaders based on a set of criteria designed to align individual qualities with organizational or institutional goals Peg Thoms challenges the popular trend in theory and practice toward transformational or visionary leadership arguing instead that leadership must be developed in context many organizations for example don’t need visionaries as much as they need operational leaders who get things done by focusing on present day tasks such as designing superior products and delivering exceptional customer service this book provides guidance for how to recruit select and retain the right people for leadership positions at any level of the organization drawing from research conducted in the private public and non profit sectors thoms features powerful examples of effective and ineffective leadership in a variety of situations and sheds light on the complex relationships between leaders and those who follow them we all choose our leaders we hire them to run our companies we vote them into office we appoint them to committees we decide to work for serve and follow them in fact all leadership is relative by taking direction or orders going to bat or war marching behind listening and agreeing we are choosing to allow another individual to lead us whether the stage is a corporation a country a club a school or any other organization effective leaders matter yet despite such high profile examples of leadership disasters from the california recall of gray davis to the fall of such business titans as ken lay and sam waksal we continue to choose hire and elect poor leaders finding the best and brightest explores this phenomenon in business politics and other sectors of society and proposes an antidote an approach to choosing leaders based on a set of criteria designed to align individual qualities with organizational or institutional goals peg thoms challenges the popular trend toward transformational leadership which focuses on identifying universal characteristics arguing instead that leadership must be developed in context many organizations for example need operational leaders who can focus on present day tasks such as designing superior products and delivering exceptional customer service and not inspirational or visionary leaders whose otherwise admirable qualities might be ill suited to the challenges at hand outlining six typical leadership search scenarios from school principal to hospital ceo thoms shows readers how to identify the traits and behaviors that are most essential for the position and how to structure interviews and other search techniques to elicit the most informative responses and home in on the best candidates she also reminds us that many organizations fail not because they can t find good leaders but because they can't keep them and offers strategies to promote leadership development whether you are an executive giving the nod to a new department head a concerned citizen casting your vote for a municipal councilman a club member choosing a new president or an aspiring leader deciding which offer will provide the greatest growth opportunities finding the best and the brightest offers fresh insights on the dynamic relationship between leaders and those who follow them sixteen year old percy calder dreams of leaving his uneventful life in the countryside and seeing the world but his daydreams are about to come true sooner than he thinks and events soon conspire to change everything before long percy will have to make the most difficult of choices and be swept up on a journey that takes him far away and into a whole new life and into the heart of an adventure that threatens to tear his world apart the debut novel from stephen leach the best and brightest is an exhilarating tale of jealousy ambition life and love in a world where power and danger are impossibly closely intertwined products and services will change with demand but one thing that will always be required for a company's success is having the right people working hard for you as a manager are you cultivating this vital resource is there more you could be doing in this accessible and practical playbook hr expert and author paul falcone helps take the guesswork out of this crucial element for success in 75 ways for managers to hire develop and keep great employees falcone shows managers how to identify the best and brightest talent hire for organizational compatibility address uncomfortable workplace situations create an environment that motivates retain restless top performers delegate in a way that develops your staff every hr executive has a laundry list of things they wish managers knew best practices that would enable the entire organization to operate more effectively falcone's book 75 ways for managers to hire develop and keep great employees has encapsulated all of this for you in a single indispensable resource new york times bestselling october

David Halberstam's masterpiece the defining history of the making of the Vietnam tragedy with a new foreword by Senator John McCain. A rich, entertaining, and profound reading experience, The New York Times using portraits of America's flawed policy makers and accounts of the forces that drove them the best and the brightest reckons magnificently with the most important abiding question of our country's recent history: Why did America become mired in Vietnam and why did we lose as the definitive single volume answer to that question. This enthralling book has never been superseded; it is an American classic praise for the best and the brightest. The most comprehensive saga of how America became involved in Vietnam, it is also the Iliad of the American empire and the Odyssey of this nation's search for its idealistic soul. The Best and the Brightest is almost like watching an Alfred Hitchcock thriller. The Boston Globe deeply moving, we cannot help but feel the compelling power of this narrative dramatic and tragic; a chain of events overwhelming in their force; a distant war embodying illusions and myths; terror and violence; confusions and courage; blindness, pride, and arrogance. The Los Angeles Times a fascinating tale of folly and self-deception; an absorbing, detailed, and devastatingly caustic tale; of Washington in the days of the caesars. The Washington Post Book World seductively readable; it is a staggeringly ambitious undertaking that is fully matched by Halberstam's performance. This is in all ways admirable and necessary book. Newsweek a story every American should read. St. Louis Post Dispatch.

finding the best and brightest proposes an approach to choosing leaders based on a set of criteria designed to align individual qualities with organizational or institutional goals peg thoms challenges the popular trend in theory and practice toward transformational or visionary leadership arguing instead that leadership must be developed in context many organizations for example don t need visionaries as much as they need operational leaders who get things done by focusing on present day tasks such as designing superior products and delivering exceptional customer service this book provides guidance for how to recruit select and retain the right people for leadership positions at any level of the organization drawing from research conducted in the private public and non profit sectors thoms features powerful examples of effective and ineffective leadership in a variety of situations and sheds light on the complex relationships between leaders and those who follow them we all choose our leaders we hire them to run our companies we vote them into office we appoint them to committees we decide to work for serve and follow them in fact all leadership is relative by taking direction or orders going to bat or war marching behind listening and agreeing we are choosing to allow another individual to lead us whether the stage is a corporation a country a club a school or any other organization effective leaders matter yet despite such high profile examples of leadership disasters from the california recall of gray davis to the fall of such business titans as ken lay and sam waksal we continue to choose hire and elect poor leaders finding the best and brightest explores this phenomenon in business politics and other sectors of society and proposes an antidote an approach to choosing leaders based on a set of criteria designed to align individual qualities with organizational or institutional goals peg thoms challenges the popular trend toward transformational leadership which focuses on identifying universal characteristics arguing instead that leadership must be developed in context many organizations for example need operational leaders who can focus on present day tasks such as designing superior products and delivering exceptional customer service and not inspirational or visionary leaders whose otherwise admirable qualities might be ill suited to the challenges at hand outlining six typical leadership search scenarios from school principal to hospital ceo thoms shows readers how to identify the traits and behaviors that are most essential for the position and how to structure interviews and other search techniques to elicit the most informative responses and home in on the best candidates she also reminds us that many organizations fail not because they can t find good leaders but because they can t keep them and offers strategies to promote leadership development whether you are an executive giving the nod to a new department head a concerned citizen casting your vote for a municipal councilman a club member choosing a new president or an aspiring leader deciding which offer will provide the greatest growth opportunities finding the best and the brightest offers fresh insights on the dynamic relationship between leaders and those who follow them
