The Deuteronomistic History and the Name Theology 2014-05-14: This monograph is a comparative socio-linguistic reassessment of the Deuteronomic idiom leshakken shemo sham and its synonymous biblical reflexes in the Deuteronomistic History lashum shemo sham and lihyot shemo sham. These particular formulae have long been understood as evidence of the name theology. The evolution in Israelite religion toward a more abstracted mode of divine presence in the temple utilizing epigraphic material gathered from Mesopotamian and Levantine contexts. This study demonstrates that leshakken shemo sham and lashum shemo sham are loan adaptations of Akkadian shuma shakanu, an idiom common to the royal monumental tradition of Mesopotamia. The resulting reinterpretation of the biblical idiom profoundly impacts the classic formulation of the name theology.

Annual Report of the Dante Society, with Accompanying Papers 1897 despite a half century of attempts by social scientists to compare frontiers around the world the study of these regions is still closely associated with the nineteenth century american west and the work of frederick jackson turner as a result the very concept of the frontier is bound up in victorian notions of manifest destiny and rugged individualism the frontier it would seem has been tamed this book seeks to open a new debate about the processes of frontier history in a variety of cultural contexts untaming the frontier as an analytic concept and releasing it in a range of unfamiliar settings drawing on examples from over four millennia it shows that throughout history societies have been formed and transformed in relation to their frontiers and that no one historical case represents the normal or typical frontier pattern the contributors historians anthropologists and archaeologists present numerous examples of the frontier as a shifting zone of innovation and recombination through which cultural materials from many sources have been unpredictably channeled and transformed at the same time they reveal recurring processes of frontier history that enable world historical comparison the emergence of the frontier in relation to a core area the mutually structuring interactions between frontier and core and the development of social exchange merger or conflict between previously separate populations brought together on the frontier any frontier situation has many dimensions and each of the chapters highlights one or more of these from the physical and ideological aspects of egypt s nubian frontier to the military and cultural components of inka outposts in bolivia to the shifting agrarian religious and political boundaries in bengal they explore cases in which the centripetal forces at work in frontier zones have resulted in cultural hybridization or creolization and in some instances show how satellite settlements on the frontiers of core polities themselves develop into new core polities each of the chapters suggests that frontiers are shaped in critical ways by topography climate vegetation and the availability of water and other strategic resources and most also consider cases of population shifts within or through a frontier zone as these studies reveal transnationalism in today s world can best be understood as an extension of frontier processes that have developed over thousands of years this book's interdisciplinary perspective challenges readers to look beyond their own fields of interest to reconsider the true nature and meaning of frontiers.

Place and orientation are important aspects of human experience. Place evokes geography and culture and conjures up history and myth. Place is not only a particular physical location but an idea, a mental construction that captures and directs the human relationship to the world. The distinguished contributors to this volume invite us to reflect on the significance of places real and imagined in the religious traditions they study and on how places are known, imagined, remembered, and struggled for. Looking at the ways myth and ritual reinforce the Yoruba’s bond to the land or at Australian Aboriginal engagements with the origins of the created world, exploring Hildegard of Bingen’s experience of heaven or myths of the underworld in contemporary American millennialism, listening to oral narratives of divine politics and deserted places of Rajasthan or investigating literal and literary images of the promised land, these essays underscore that place is constructed in the intersection of material conditions, political realities, narrative, and ritual performance.

This 500,000 word reference work provides the most comprehensive general treatment available of the peoples and places of the regions commonly referred to as the ancient Near and Middle East extending from the Aegean coast of Turkey in the west to the Indus River in the east. It contains some 1,500 entries on the kingdoms, countries, cities, and population groups of Anatolia, Cyprus, Syria, Palestine, Mesopotamia, and Iran and parts of Central Asia from the Early Bronze Age to the end of the Persian Empire. Five distinguished international scholars have collaborated with the author on the project. Detailed accounts are provided of the Near Eastern peoples and places known to us from historical records. Each of these entries includes specific references to translated passages from the relevant ancient texts. Numerous entries on archaeological sites contain accounts of their history of excavation as well as more detailed descriptions of their chief features and their significance within the commercial, cultural, and political contexts of the regions to which they belonged. The book contains a range of illustrations including twenty maps. It serves as a major, indeed a unique reference source for students as well as established scholars both of the ancient Near Eastern as well as the classical civilizations. It also appeals to more general readers wishing to pursue in depth their interests in these civilizations. There is nothing comparable to it on the market today.

In sharp contrast to today’s disorder was the apparent cohesion and stability of Indonesia during much of the new order period 1965–1998. While Suharto’s authoritarian rule was significant, the regime’s cultural policies also played their part in demonstrating that his regime created order throughout Indonesia not just through coercive means. Ethnic religious and regional sentiments were to be channelled into art which was used to help develop a national Indonesian identity. This theme is explored by this study which focuses on the efforts of a group of young art students based at the Bandung Academy of Performing Arts to revitalize traditional Longer Theater.
